

FINANCIAL.

"Full of Merit as an Egg is of Meat"

THE BLACK TIGER COPPER MINING CO.

INCORPORATED.

Stock Full Paid and Non-Assessable.
CAPITAL, $1,000,000.00
Promotion Stock, . $250,000.00
Treasury Stock, . . 750,000.00

$1,000,000.00

Do you really want to invest a little of your savings, and have an honest, fair chance for your money? If so,

OPPORTUNITY

Is knocking at your pocketbook for admittance. A little money—a few dollars—invested in "BLACK TIGER" stock is liable to make you a fortune.

FREE!

Full and reliable descriptive matter, reports, etc., showing how it is quite possible, and even probable, for an investment of $7,000 to grow into $70,000 or more in a few months. The "BLACK TIGER COPPER MINING COMPANY" owns over 40 acres of rich copper lands in Southern Wyoming. A mammoth tunnel is now being driven into the mountain side to crosscut the vein. When the tunnel reaches the great vein it is so plainly opened up on the surface "BLACK TIGER" stock is liable to jump in a single day up to $1.00, $2.00 or $5.00 per share, or more.

THINK OF IT!

First allotment of treasury stock now offered at only 7 cents per share, for strictly development purposes. No salary paid to any officer. Write at once for prospectus before price is advanced. Address

THE FEDERAL SECURITY CO., 277 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

THE VERY BEST OF BANK REFERENCES FURNISHED.

To Conservative Investors!

THE ST. LOUIS-SPINDLE TOP HEIGHTS OIL CO.

Is incorporated under the laws of the State of Texas for $250,000. Fully paid up and nonassessable.

Of this amount, there is to be sold, for the laying of pipes, building of storage tanks, tank cars, etc., fifty thousand shares of 50 cents per share (par value, $100).

We have two and one-thirty-second acres on Spindle Top Heights, and leases on over seventeen thousand acres in and around Beaumont.

We are now boring our first well on our lot in section 28, Hogg-Swaine syndicate.

We received the following telegram from our contractor Thursday:

Beaumont, Tex., January 25, 1902.

C. H. Woolley Co.,
710 Odd Fellows' Building, St. Louis, Mo.

St. Louis-Spindle Top Heights well down nine hundred and fifteen feet, progressing nicely. Will soon be in oil rock. Using nine-inch pipe.

(Signed) C. H. WOOLLEY & CO.

Our drillers are using a NINE-INCH pipe, we will have THE LARGEST Gusher in the WORLD.

Nothing larger than an eight-inch pipe having ever been used.

We are selling stock with the full guarantee that unless our well comes in as specified we gladly refund money paid for stock.

This makes it a safe investment. Shortly after our well comes in the price of stock will necessarily advance. So now is the time to subscribe. A few hundred dollars invested now may make you the most wealthy man in St. Louis.

CHAR. E. WENNEKER, President; Fred J. CHAS. L. RUCKER, Secy. & Genl. Manager; New York Life Insurance Co.; Inspector New York Life Insurance Co.; Frank J. MEYER, President; John Bros. Coffee and Spice Co.; GEO. H. LUCAS, Pres.; New York Life Insurance Co.; B. O. DAVIDSON, Prominent Attorney, St. Louis.

For further information and prospectus call on or address

C. H. WOOLLEY & CO., Fiscal Agents,
710 ODD FELLOWS' BUILDING, ST. LOUIS, MO.

HAPPENINGS AMONG ST. LOUIS LODGES.

Addition of New Members Reported by Many of the Orders—Social Events.

Eastern Council, Royal Arcanum, gave its annual banquet on Friday evening this year complimentary to those who have brought in new members, and also in honor of Rich and D'Onoch, William Morgan, H. J. Braun, James E. Comfort, Robert J. Morrison and others of the old guard. The tables were attractively arranged and covered with forty-severv-five menus. The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Doctor M. R. Windhurst, Charles Hilger, Robert Klein, William F. Debach and Louis Hamsterman, and received high commendation for its successful efforts. A stream of songs, readings and speeches were freely flown during the evening, interspersed with music, the contributions to this feature being L. J. Meyer, A. S. Robinson, Jerry Hallerman, E. F. Westcott, F. E. Gottschall, Doctor M. R. Windhurst, Louis F. Debach, E. L. McDowell and others.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, of Fulton, coming to the district meeting at Mexia, Texas, were present, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The representatives of Kingdom Lodge, No. 21, of Fulton, coming to the district meeting at Mexia, Texas, were present, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The representatives of Zeta Lodge, No. 21, of Mexia, Texas, were present, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No. 21, advanced two applications for initiation, and the vice-chairman, C. O. Gaines, and John H. Smith, keeper of records of the order, addressed the brothers in forcible language to fill the vacant chair. Some twenty were present from Centralia, Illinois, and twenty from the various carnivals and fairs. Wreaths around the walls were long streams of red-white-and-blue ribbons. The hall was crowded, followed by a large audience.

The Knights of Pythias, No.